V FOR VICTORY

Victor Delebeyle, Belgian minister of education, and delegate to the San Francisco security conference, has apparently been fully credited with devising the famous V-for-victory sign that helped maintain morale during the dark years of the European blackout of decency under the nazis.

When Belgian school kids were scribbling R.A.F. on public walls to annoy German occupation troops, Delebeyle thought that merely writing V (for the French term "victoire," or for the Flemish term "vrijheid") would be equally "exasperating to the boche and much safer for the kids since it was easier and quicker to write.

Possibly the fact that V also stood for the English word "victory" was accidental; but it was a stroke of genius for a British propaganda expert to see on the first three knocking notes in Beethoven's famed Fifth Symphony—to set to the Morse code symbol for the letter V (— — — — —) Jan. 14, 1941, the British Broadcasting company asked all resistance units in Europe, from Norway to the Spanish frontier, to chalk either V or — — — — — on the walls as often as possible. The idea spread, like a forest fire, aided by many pictures of Churchill fidgeting a V with his forefinger and mid-dlefinger.

This symbol of victory played its vital part in undermining nazi morale and strengthening the spirit of resisting Europe. The happy inspiration of M. Delebeyle will not be soon forgotten.—St. Petersburg Independent.

CANNED GOODS SHORTAGE

Ration brakes were slammed on too late to stretch stocks of canned vegetables.

Points on peas and tomato went from 21 to 30 a can, April 1; on corn, from 10 to 20. Stocks of peas and tomatoes in canners' hands May 1 were 33 percent of last year's; of corn, 40 percent. Retailers also have a little better stocked with corn than with peas. Tomatoes were about gone.

When peas are gone, we'll have to go without until August or late July. New canned corn won't be in until September.—Wall Street Journal.

MULE SKINNING

Two Alabama farmers were wrangling in front of the village post office.

"What's the matter out there?" asked the postmaster.

"They've swapped mules," reported the town knock-out, "and now each is accusing the other of skinning him."

"Why don't they trade back then?"

"They're afraid they'll get skinned again," was the reply.—Mobile Register.

Too Late

TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay

I don't know how long it will be before they have the new hospital for the insane ready at Camp Park but they'd better make it soon and I want to make application now for a paid padded cell.

About two weeks ago, C. G. Campbell, State Salvage Director, got me in a weak moment and asked me into accepting the post of salvage director for Hillsborough County.

He had a good line and assured me that about all I had to do was make a few radio talks and get a lot of publicity in the papers and the city, assisted by the Defense Council, would take care of all the details.

Well, my appointment was announced in the paper and since then I've been getting more telephone calls and love letters than a movie star. It seemed like everybody had a bundle of paper or a mass of tin cans to dispose of and they were taking pains to tell me about it.

What I didn't know at the time was that the "Merry-go-round" has broken down.—The Army had been collecting the stuff but had discontinued the service when their equipment was moved out.

The city promised to do what it could but the Sanitary department didn't have enough trucks or men to take care of the regular garbage collection, let alone food around with paper and tin cans.

In desperation I appealed to the local scrap paper dealer. He was up to his neck with no equipment and very little help and the paper I went into the problem, the thicker it got.

The War Production Board kept screaming for more paper. I got more cans and sent me about a ton of printed matter designed to sell me on the need of greater effort. They also sent high powered expeditors around to prod me into action, but nobody seemed to be able to figure out a way to collect the stuff and get it to the mills.

I got a nice congratulatory letter from the Governor telling me how happy he was to confirm my appointment and asking me to take an oath to uphold and defend the constitution.

After sitting in the Mayor's lap and "hiring like a baby," I finally got him to agree to make a city-wide collection of cans if I would get folks to put them in bags or boxes and set them out in front of the houses on a certain day. You

I was really getting somewhere: I went on the radio and pleaded with folks to gather all the cans they could, wash them, take the labels off, cut out both ends and smash them flat, then put them out in front where we could get them.

I went to bed the night before the pick-up day, dreaming of the prepared cars, and I was sure we'd get a couple of carloads. Well, the next morning I drove out to the looking-glass world.

About every six blocks I'd find a box or bag of a dozen or so. Altogether we didn't get much more than a truckload and we'd covered the whole town.

Then I took some time off and interviewed a lot of folks to see if they could find what the trouble was. The answer I got convinced me that the public if not sold on the proposition.

Ever since Pearl Harbor they have been asked to save scrap iron, aluminum, tin, tooth-paste tubes, rags, bottles or what have you. Most folks took these appeals seriously in the beginning.

They did save the stuff and carried it to salvage depots only to see it lay around for months and finally be hauled to the city dump.

Housewives saved cans and delivered them to their grocer and then saw them lay around and rust. They collected all their waste paper, tied it in bundles and left it on the curb. In some cases it lay there for a week, or blew over the streets.

In the meantime, over the radio and through the newspaper, the frantic appeals continued to be made. It got to be an old story. Just how we are going to overcome this apathy I don't know. I can't say I blame folks much.

Maybe here we will things out in the Pacific, some of our bright Washington bureaucrats will figure out what we need and set up a definite intelligent plan for getting it, as the matter stands now it seems we are doing a wonderful job of running around in circles.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN GOD? Not all people who profess belief in God love God; in fact, most people who profess a belief in God do not mean what they say at all, else they would hear Christ when He said, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Friends, our belief is too superficial, too much of a "Stalin cult," "sectarian," we use in forming a life which we believe to be balance must be religious. Don't forget it's one thing to be religious and another to be Christian. Too many people follow religion; too few follow Christ. A man cannot conscientiously believe in God and doubt Christ if he believes the Bible to be the divine Word of God. There are religions without Christ, but there is no Christianity without Christ.

Let a man follow the Lord Jesus and we have the finest embodiment of faith, love, and worship there is. His life will be an "eternal known and feed of men." He will be the "right of the world" and "the salt of the earth." He'll be separated and dedicated to the glory of God. How shameful to day the number of so called Christians who have never dedicated themselves to the glory of God. In all Bible writings we find God's people to have been a separated people; few of us are really separated today. The things of this world have so fascinated us that we have become a part of them ourselves; we become that we love!

We've gotten so busy living this life we've died to the next. If you love God with the kind of love He wants, demands, and expects of us we dare not, we can not, place anything above Him! . . . yet, how many of us would rather go to a movie on Sunday night than to Church! How many of us are found half nude on the beach when we should be fully clad in the armor of God at Church! . . . The greatest foe of the Christian movement today is not that it has become divided among Churches and denominations; it is in the fact that in all churches there are too many saying "Lord, Lord," who do not the things that Christ says. If we really believe in Christ we'll be separated unto that belief!

Canal Point Baptist Church.

Sitting In With The Lawmakers

By Russell Kay

Swinging into its final week, the 1945 legislature found its calendar filled with a number of controversial bills, including several pieces of legislation asked for by the governor such as the Florida Improvement Commission.

The Improvement Commission, powers of which Caldwell seeks to have redefined. He said if such an act is not taken, the administration will proceed under the act, as the legislature has not yet acted on it.

New Circle Need Is Suggested

By Russell Kay

The need for forming another WMU circle was brought to the attention of members of the First Baptist. Women's Missionary Union at a business meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. F. Hurt Monday afternoon. It was suggested that the new circle consist of wives of service men, however, no definite action to organize the new group was taken at the meeting.

Mrs. G. Gillis, Sunbeam Band leader, reported that 125 children had entered in the SB during the past year and that the group had disbanded for the summer months. Mrs. R. F. Hurt reported that the Girls Auxiliary also had disbanded for the summer. Both groups will be reorganized in the fall.

Mrs. C. A. Moberg, representing the Business Woman's Circle, gave a report on community mission work. Reports were also given by other WMU officers.

Mrs. J. C. Mock, president, opened the meeting and read an article, "One of a Million." Mrs. W. M. Miss Elizabeth Carrway led the prayer.

It was announced that the next business meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Connell.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS Many are unaware that a period of some four hundred years transpired between the Old and New Testaments. This Sunday will close this quarter's lesson based upon portions of the Old Testament. As a fitting climax the Old and New Testament interin will be discussed. The Class Quartet will favor with two selections, accompanied at the piano by the teacher, Rev. C. A. Moberg.

The class meets each Sunday morning at 9:45 in the Lions' Building. A most interesting invitation is extended to the unaffiliated men of the community, service men and other visitors. The Palatka Men's Bible Class has grown from an enrollment of ten to more than a hundred within a year. Mr. R. Cowart is the enthusiastic song leader.

The house passed and sent to the senate administration endorsed bills to create a full-time budget agency and central purchasing bureau and to consolidate the state's 276 separate funds into five. The budget director and purchasing bills have been made special order bills for senate consideration.

The senate passed and sent to the house the governor's bill to set up a revamped state improvement commission and increase the jail alibi betting tax.

MirrApianos

The unique styling built into our fine MirrApianos preserves their full musical tones in a beautiful, graceful setting. The eye sees a small piano, but the ear hears that sonorous musical tone that is possible only with adequate string length and generous sounding board area.

The MirrApiano involves no compromise with tone or touch. The mirrored tuning housing the pin plank and tuning pin assembly becomes a traditional room expanding wall decoration, rather than a part of the piano.

We now have a limited number of these fine pianos available for immediate delivery, also some nice thoroughly reconditioned "shipped in" uprights. All fully-guaranteed. Terms if desired.

"Smooth as oil" . . . that is what I said when I saw "And Now Tomorrow", which comes to the Prince Theatre this Sunday-Monday, and sat through the finished performance of Alan Ladd, teamed with Loretta Young, and supported by such excellent players as Susan Hayward, Barry Sullivan, Cecil Kellaway, Beulah Bondi and Grant Mitchell, with of course, some unmentioned "bit players, who all added their spice to the piece and made it as good to digest. Oh yes, the story . . . will, there are two sisters in New England who are left with the mill that supports the town. Loretta Young, who is engaged to Barry Sullivan, loses her hearing through illness. The other sister, Susan Hayward, returns from abroad and promptly falls in love with the said Barry. Miss Young seeks medical aid to cure her deafness and is about to give up when a doctor in Canada, put her in touch with Alan Ladd, who is bitter against the mill owner family for wrongs done his father. He agrees to attempt to cure the girl's deafness with a new method he has discovered. He does cure her, but during the treatments they fall in love with each other . . . How's that? Why of course they get married. It's a sweet love story that you will sit at through with utter enjoyment, and its a new Alan Ladd that you're going to see . . . I think a better Ladd than the one who went to the wars.

Is double feature for your Tuesday-Wednesday showing. First one up is "Bovary, Campa" with the East Side Kids and Ann Stirling which is the story of "Muggs", one of the East Side Kids, who discovers a murder while he is working on a newspaper as a copy boy.

Of course there is the usual amount of "chick" while the members of "the gang" are trying to find the reason for the crime and the "who dunnit" part. But at last, through a little cleverness on the part of "the Kids", the thing is solved and every thing ends okay.

Second picture up is "Ministry Of Fear" which stars Ray Milland and Marjorie Reynolds and features Rita Johnson, Carl Edmund, Percy Warren, Erskine Sanford, Dan Duryea, Alan Napier. This one has a very interesting story about a man released from an asylum, where he has been placed when he makes a plea of insanity after the mysterious murder of his wife. It is a very mysterious and interesting story and I'm sure you'll like it.

"Tuesday, Wednesday also boasts double features. First one up is "Ever Since Venus" which stars Tim Hutton and Ann Savage and features Hugh Herbert, Ross Hunter, Billy Gilbert, Glenda Farrow.

reel, Marjorie Gatenon, Fritz Feld and Bill Shavin. This one is a comedy with music and 35 of the screw-ball comedy it is possible to cram into a picture. It'll stay you.

Second picture up is "Address Unknown" which stars Paul Lukas and Mady Christians and features Morris Carnovsky, K. T. Stevens, Peter van Eyck, Carl Esmund, Emory Parnell, Mary Young, Frank Paylam, Charles Halton and Edwin Kallber.

This cast unrolled a story of intense interest laid in the heart of Germany and goes back to the years of Hitler's rise to power. Yes, you'll like it.

Saturday William "Hopalong Cassidy with Andy Clyde and a fine cast bring a Western picture that really has a good story, plenty of "western punch" and a car load of thrills for the members of the Six Shooters Club.

Growers, Business Should Cooperate

LAKE WALES, May 31. (FNS)—L. G. Foster, general manager of Florida Canners Cooperative, in a statement here this week, said a mutual understanding of each others problems between business and agriculture was the greatest need today.

He pointed out that business leaders do not have any real conception of farm problems in general or of farm co-operatives in particular and consequently a deaf ear to the problems of agriculture, which is an invitation to agriculture to ignore the problems of business.

He said that if free enterprise is to be preserved in this country, agriculture and industry must have an understanding of each other's problems, just as both groups must acquaint themselves with labor's view point so that these three great groups can work together harmoniously for the good of the nation as a whole.

As an example of the short sightedness of business, he called attention to the present activity of the National Tax Equality Association, which is a business group, that is openly attacking farm co-operatives on the ground that they represent unfair competition and operate tax free.

Foster points out that this statement is false, for co-operatives pay all the various forms of taxes that any other business or industry pays and are not called upon to pay an income tax simply because they do not have any income, being nonprofit organizations, their earnings or returns being related to the individual grower members on a private basis.

If business and industry operate on the same basis farmer co-operatives operate on, they would not be called on for income tax either. If business leaders would study the farmer's problems and the farmers would acquaint themselves with the problems of industry, these controversies would not arise and the two interests could work shoulder to shoulder for their mutual welfare.

Anyone familiar with the operation of co-operatives in Florida knows that these organizations have been primarily responsible for the growth and development of our citrus and trucking industries. Because of their growth and operation all business in the State has prospered, he pointed out.

Red Barber, former WHIR radio announcer and University of Florida student, now with Radio Station WOR, broadcasting games of the Brooklyn Dodgers, recently smashed all records as chairman for the Red Cross Drive in Greater New York by passing over $21,000,000.

Pvt. John Burdeshaw arrived this week on a 30-day furlough for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Price Burdeshaw, in Pahokee. He was overseas in the European theatre for nine months. Wounded in action on the Western Front, he spent three months recuperating in an army hospital before returning recently to the United States.
